When you work with an architectural firm, you want a design that is both dynamic and practical. With GLE, you have a responsive design partner who can fulfill your vision and meet all of your objectives. Since 1989, we have specialized in highly creative, functional design solutions. We have extensive experience with new construction and the renovation of existing buildings.

Architectural consulting extends far beyond drawing plans and supervising construction. The planning and construction of a new building combines not only detailed design and financial analysis, but also long-term operational and life cycle maintenance considerations.

Renovations are even more complex, requiring detailed evaluation of all the building's engineering systems, an investigation of hazardous materials, and a determination of any limitations that may impact current code compliance or efficient space utilization. Challenging environmental issues such as asbestos, indoor air quality and lead-based paint may need to be addressed.

Land planning and site design also require specialized expertise to maximize return on investment, while ensuring that regulatory requirements are met – for example, incorporating sufficient density to meet business objectives while working with special factors such as wetlands, endangered wildlife and environmental contamination.

Our professional staff has the experience and expertise to address all of these issues to ensure successful project delivery.

Focused on your success.

As a full-service facilities and environmental consulting firm, we have in-house resources to solve all of the design, construction and environmental challenges of your project.

In addition to a wide range of business and commercial structures, GLE has designed thousands of educational and governmental facilities, as well as housing, aviation and healthcare projects.

Property owners and developers appreciate our ability to incorporate their design parameters, including corporate standards, to arrive at creative and practical solutions that will meet their needs. We also provide strategic planning to analyze and forecast an organization's space requirements.

Commercial property managers know that we have the practical expertise to get them up and running quickly with minimum disruption to property operations.

General contractors like the way we team with them to design constructible projects and deliver them on time and on budget without sacrificing quality. We have a reputation as good listeners and idea generators.

Public sector clients appreciate GLE's ability to provide innovative designs within fixed budgets.
