Industrial hygiene OSHA compliance Health and safety training

We know you are concerned with the health and safety of your employees. Yet you may not have time to stay up to date in this rapidly changing environment. At GLE, we're on the forefront of the latest technologies and regulations. We provide the best possible advice to manage your risk, meet regulatory requirements and avoid litigation.

Unlike most health and safety consulting firms that can only assess the problem, our multidisciplinary teams also develop and implement effective solutions. We specialize in claims resolution with OSHA and other governmental agencies.

Our health and safety services deliver tangible benefits including:

- Healthier employees, students and customers
- Higher productivity
- Lower insurance costs and workers compensation rates
- Increased profitability
- Significantly reduced risk of violations and fines
- Claims resolution with regulators in a timely fashion

Since 1989, clients have trusted us to guide them and their employees in building and maintaining safe, compliant workplaces. Our industrial hygienists and safety professionals are fully qualified to quickly identify and assess the conditions in your workplace that can negatively affect employees' health.

At GLE, we can evaluate employee work conditions to develop job safety analyses, as well as hazard communications, safety and personal protection programs. We have extensive experience assessing and testing for worker exposures to physical agents and airborne chemical and microbiological contaminants.

A major part of any safety and health program involves employee training. GLE professionals can provide comprehensive training for your team.

We have a solid track record helping our clients resolve claims with OSHA and other governmental agencies. Our experts understand that there are many complex health and safety issues covered by OSHA. To solve these issues, we find the best approaches that are acceptable to regulators and safe for your employees. We also have extensive experience supporting clients in public relations issues, including presentations to the media, management, employees and governmental agencies.

GLE has performed thousands of successful projects for industrial, construction, insurance, public sector, and healthcare clients. For occupational safety and health services, GLE brings a proven track record of integrity and practical expertise to work for you.
